ARGENTINA

Over the past decade Argentina has evolved from a country not well known on the global wine scene to the New World's fastest growing exporter of wines. The leading grape in Argentina in terms of reputation and quantity is Malbec, a Bordeaux variety imported to Argentina from France in the mid-19th century. It is a difficult grape to which the climate and conditions around Mendoza are arguably ideally suited and it is here that over 80% of Argentina's wine comes from. Many Argentinian wine labels include the altitude of the vineyard where the grapes were grown. This practice is rarely seen in other countries. Winemakers working these vineyards believe that higher altitudes and increased solar exposure results in thicker - skinned grapes which produce deliciously concentrated wines.

Coonawarra

If you like rich, colourful wines, you'll love Coonawarra. The Coonawarra wine region is a wine region centred on the town of Coonawarra in the Limestone Coast zone of South Australia. Its premium red wines have won many awards with its Cabernet Sauvignon internationally renowned and its Shiraz also highly regarded. The region's terra rossa soil (red soil found on limestone) is perfect for grape growing. Katnook lies in the heart of Coonawarra with its first vines planted in 1971. Chief Wine Maker Wayne Stehbens boasts an extraordinary track record, winning two Jimmy Watson Trophies (1987 and 1998) and a double trophy at the prestigious International Wine & Spirit Competition in 2003.

Murray Darling

The Murray Darling is the second largest wine region in Australia, straddling the Murray river in North West Victoria and western New South Wales. The warm climate and unique soil has helped cultivate some of Australia's best wines. Keenan's Bridge wines are named after James Keenan who left Ireland for a new life in Australia in 1852. The area he settled in became known as Keenan's Bridge and was a regular stopover for travellers and herders on the main trading route through the region.

Barossa Valley

Wine has been a way of life in the Barossa since 1842. The Barossa incorporates both Barossa Valley and Eden Valley, making it one of the only areas in Australia to have neighbouring warm and cool climate growing conditions. Barossa Shiraz and Eden Valley Riesling have led the way as regional heroes, with Cabernet Sauvignon, Grenache, Viognier, and Semillon all contributing to the Barossa's standing as one of the world's great wine regions. Wolf Blass is one of Australia's greatest success stories. The brand is recognised internationally as an icon of modern winemaking and counts 'Winemaker of the Year 2013' and 'Red Wine Maker of the Year 2013', given by the prestigious IWS competition among their most recent awards.

CHILE

Central Valley

This is Chile's most productive and internationally known wine region, due in large part to its proximity to the country's capital, Santiago. It is located directly across the Andes from Argentina's most well-known wine region, Mendoza Province. Grapes grow well and ripen easily on this fertile flatland that benefits from natural irrigation (rivers carry melted snow from the Andes) and a generally Mediterranean climate with warm, dry summers. Central Valley blends combine fruit from different areas for well-rounded, silky smooth wine styles that consistently offer some of the best-value in the world.

Alsace

Alsace is one of the great, under-appreciated treasures of the wine world. This pretty enclave of fairytale villages in the lee of the forested Vosges Mountains offers a wide range of varietal wines. Over 90% of Alsace wines are made from white grape varieties it's the only French wine region to grow significant quantities of Riesling and Gewurztraminer. Both of these varieties are more commonly associated with German wines, and serve as a reminder of Alsace's strong Franco-Germanic influences. Aromatic and balanced with impressive acidity and structure, these wines are remarkably food friendly.

Bordeaux

Bordeaux, in the south-west of France, needs little introduction to anyone with an interest in wine. One of the world's most prolific wine regions, it also manages to rank among the most famous and prestigious. This famous winemaking region's maritime climate, celebrated parcels of land, distinguished collection of grape varieties, well-honed traditions and complicated classification systems all come together in a tethered trellising system to form the winemaking wonder that is Bordeaux. Bordeaux's climate is a critical player in vintage quality year in and year out. The majority of Bordeaux wines are the dry, medium-bodied reds that made the region famous.

Rhône

This region is split north and south. Northern Rhône, which includes the likes of Crozes-Hermitage, Saint-Joseph, and Côte-Rôtie are all made from the Syrah grape. These tend to be full-flavoured, deeply coloured wines, spicy in flavour and medium to full-bodied. Southern Rhône, which include Gigondas and Châteauneuf-du-Pape among many other names, tend to be made from several grape varieties with Grenache often a major component. These are usually less intense in colour but fuller in body, rounder and richer. For the last two hundred years in the Rhone Valley, Chapoutier has been producing some of the greatest wines. The vineyards and the single vineyards are cultivated either organically or biodynamically to respect the terroir.

Burgundy

Burgundy is an historic and highly respected wine region in eastern France. Burgundy wines have long had devout followers throughout the world and continue to do so today. What makes both Burgundian wines so special, is that Burgundy, more than probably any other wine region in the world, is completely influenced by its terroir. Most of the great vineyards are very small and each property is made up of many little, detached parcels of land.

Loire

The Loire Valley is the heart of France, famous for its natural beauty, magnificent châteaux and great wine. But Loire wines have lightness, airiness and freshness that put a spring in the taste buds of those who love powerful Rhônes or elegant Burgundies. That consistency of character is remarkable when you consider that the Loire follows a 630-mile course from a source near Beaujolais to the Atlantic Ocean. We have two chosen two wines from the famous Chateaus of Moreau and De La Cassemichere, who's wines are characterised by classic mineral notes, fruit freshness an subtle aromas.

Languedoc

The wild Corbières region of the Languedoc, France, is home to some of France's best good-value quality wines. Vineyards in the Languedoc are generally planted along the coastal plains of the Mediterranean, there's been a boom in quality here, with ambitious winemakers and growers producing impressive reds and whites, still at affordable prices. The region is known for its diversity with many different grape varieties grown. Most producers make blends instead of single varietal wines.

NEW ZEALAND

New Zealand wine is distinctive for its purity, vibrancy and intensity. The long ripening period - a result of cool temperatures - allows flavour development whilst retaining fresh acidity, a balance for which New Zealand wines are renowned. Variety of wines are made in New Zealand, the most famous of which are the pungent, grassy whites made from Sauvignon Blanc in Marlborough. Pinot Noir has also proved itself well suited to New Zealand's terroir and has made itself at home in Martinborough, Marlborough and most famously in Central Otago, where the wines can be described as dense and muscular with strong flavors of dark fruit.

PORTUGAL

The wines of Portugal are considered to be some of Europe's best kept secrets. Renowned for its Port and Madeira, it's now Portuguese wines that are generating excitement in the world of wine. Around 20 years ago, Portugal started to attract new dynamic and progressive-thinking winemakers who have driven quality and production to new levels. Strict temperature control during fermentation has allowed growers to produce modern wines that could be appreciated by all wine lovers. Of Portugal's eleven major wine regions, the Douro is by far the most significant to fine wine production. Vinha do Monte offers the authenticity and instant passion of the Alentejo flavours, making exuberant and captivating wines, whose flavours, aromas and hues recall life at its best, as does the region whence they hail.

USA

The United States has confidently come of age as one of the world's top wine-producing nations. Its reputation may be founded on the global fame of Napa and Sonoma, but the U.S. is home to countless lesser-known wine regions producing world-class wines. Wine has been made in The States for around 400 years. Napa Valley, California, is one of the most famous and prestigious wine regions anywhere in the New World. The valley's vineyards are known for producing quality Cabernet Sauvignon, Chardonnay and Zinfandel.

SPIRITS & FORTIFIEDS

Glendalough Distillery

The Glendalough distillery was set up by five friends from Wicklow with a deep passion for reviving the heritage of craft distilling in Ireland. In the 18th and 19th centuries there were over two hundred licensed distilleries in Ireland. Until recently that has dropped to a small handful. Glendalough Distillery is now part of a revival of this heritage. The idea behind Glendalough Distillery is to make innovative spirits while staying true to tradition.

Williams & Humbert

Founded in 1877 by Alexander Williams and Arthur Humbert, the company is now owned entirely by the Medina family of Jerez. The company's most famous product in Ireland is undoubtedly A Winter's Tale. A blend of Palomino and Pedro Ximenez, the wine is aged for a minimum of six years in the Criaderas y Solera system. It is a mediumsweet Amontillado, with an intense nose of nuts, a full body and persistent finish. It shines as an aperitif. Williams and Humbert is the first and only producer to convince the 'regulador' to allow it to put age designations on some of their finest Sherries, from 12 year old to 30 year old wines.

Graham's Port

Graham's was founded in 1820 and now has earned an unmatched reputation as the leading producer of premium Port wines. The company has been owned by just two families in its entire history; originally founded by the Graham's, it was acquired by the Symington family in 1970. Today, five members of the Symington family work in the company - Paul, Johnny, Dominic, Rupert and Charles. The Symington's are members of the exclusive Primus Familiae Vini, a grouping of eleven leading wine families in the world. Graham's Port has declared 2011 a vintage year and they have released their 2011 vintage port this year.

BEERS

Dungarvan Brewing Company

Dungarvan Brewing Company is a family run microbrewery located on the south east coast of Ireland producing a range of bottle-conditioned craft beers since 2010. All the beers are traditionally brewed and bottled on-site made using only four ingredients - barley, hops, yeast and water. No chemicals are added to the beers, they are unfiltered, unpasteurised and vegan-friendly. The beers are bottle-conditioned in the traditional fashion, which means that a natural carbonation process occurs which eliminates the need for the addition of further gas. This leaves a yeast sediment in the bottle, which is completely natural and acceptable. Store it upright, and pour it in one go and you will pour a clear pint and leave the yeast stuck to the bottom of the bottle.

Armagh Brewing Company

Armagh Cider Company is owned by Philip and Helen Troughton of Ballinteggart House, outside Portadown. The Troughton family have been growing apples there for four generations since 1898, though the family farm has also been home to a hugely successful sport horse breeding and stud business for over 20 years. In recent years, the market for apples in Ireland has changed beyond all recognition, becoming much more commodity driven, with the inherent loss of margin that entails. Given these factors, Philip and Helen revisited the long-held idea of making their own top quality, hand-crafted cider that would outshine in terms of taste and quality its mass-produced rivals and appeal to discerning drinkers looking for something more authentic and naturally flavoursome.

Cronins Cider

As a young man working in the family pub in Listowel, John Cronin remembers thinking there should be more than one cider on offer. With a clear vision of what he wanted, he set out on a quest. Over 20 years ago he teamed up with English master cider maker Keith Knight to create his cider. Cronin's goal was to create a cider that tasted refreshing, was clean to the eye and palate, whilst maintaining a philosophy of using natural ingredients.
